From The Pastor's Heart

Spring is finally on its way. I am especially grateful this year for seeing signs that the warmer weather is on its way. The grass and flowers are beginning to bud, and the Phillies are playing and the hopefulness of a new Spring season is upon us! As I have been recuperating from some medical challenges, I have been blessed by your prayers and cards. The Lord is with us no matter what we face individually or together as his people.

This month, our worship sermon series is "Following Jesus Matters." I was struck by a simple phrase I recently read, God's love goes the distance. The more I thought about that phrase, it challenged me deeply. We will soon be reflecting upon Jesus' journey to the cross and all that took place in Jesus' life, death and resurrection. As the hymn writer declares: "Amazing love, how can it be that thou my God would die for me?"

That is why on the morning of Jesus' resurrection, we read: The angel said to the women, "Do not be afraid, for I know that you are looking for Jesus, who was crucified. He is not here; he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where he lay. Then go quickly and tell his disciples: 'He has risen from the dead and is going ahead of you into Galilee. There you will see him.' Now I have told you."

Celebrating the resurrection is EVERYTHING. When Jesus walked out of the tomb, the people of God have celebrated ever since! "Death could not keep its prey, Jesus my Savior. He tore the bars away, Jesus my Lord. Up from the grave He arose, With a mighty triumph o'er His foes. He arose a Victor from the dark domain. And he lives forever with His saints to reign. He arose, He arose, Hallelujah, Christ arose!"

The empty tomb says, "He is risen." The disciples say, "He is risen." The church of Jesus Christ says, "He is risen." All creation says, "He is risen." I'm so glad He is risen. Jesus has conquered our enemy. He solved the problem of death forever because he entered the realm of death on our behalf and he came out on the other side holding the keys of death and hell in his hands!

Good news that the tomb is empty. Good news that Jesus rose from the dead. Good news that death has lost its sting. Good news that the grave has lost its victory. Good news that we need not fear death any more. Celebrating the resurrection is EVERYTHING!

My prayer is that as we celebrate our Lord's resurrection this year, we reflect upon the fact that we can believe, confess, know and receive Him. We can have hope and confidence with an expectation that we are never alone and we can spend forever in eternity with Him! Now that's the way to celebrate Easter! May we pursue and celebrate the risen Lord together, living our lives out of the love and passion of what Jesus has done for us, sharing with everyone everywhere. There is no greater way to begin our Spring.

In His Love and Grace,
Pastor Sam

MISSIONARY MESSAGES

Chuck and Bev Truxton, PA and Nigeria

When our friend Nuhu said, "The children will ever live to remember, 'WE HAD A TAP IN OUR SCHOOL!'" we knew that something really exciting was happening! The kids in Miango village all know one of life's realities: Water comes from a bucket; and it's no small job fetching what you need for the day. Every day.

In late October when Chuck got back from Nigeria he let you know of the need for boreholes in the village of Miango. People were trekking long distances each day to find water and many wells were drying up because of increased demand. You gave and we started the first borehole. The yield was so good we decided to run a pipe to a nearby primary school. For kids who are used to being sent out to search the area for water each day, the idea of a tap in the school with water flowing out is incredibly exciting. And it's really good, clean water too!

There's not a real drinking fountain in the school yet; think of this excitement next month when Chuck arrives with a simple one to be installed in the school premises! Thank you for your prayers and gifts that have made the water project possible.

There's more! We've started a second borehole in another part of the village near the village market. And it's nearly completed! What is still needed is a solar power source for the pump since the electrical power available in the village is spotty. This will ensure availability of water always. The solar power unit will cost $1,800.00.

Chuck will be working on various projects for SIM Nigeria including work with HIV & AIDS patients and those at the Pro-Life Safe House at our hospital in Jos as well as some projects at the mission's Retreat & Conference Center at Miango. And he hopes to make significant progress with the ongoing cemetery project -- writing the stories of the missionaries and missionary children buried in our little cemetery at Miango. Most of the research is finally completed and writing of the exciting stories is under way. The little stone gazebo you can see below (upper left) is the spot in the cemetery where most of the writing happens!

We are so grateful for your prayers and also for your emails and letters of encouragement.

Lowell and Claudia Wertz, Tanzania

Our house is bustling with activities. Get the newsletter done, get the Tanzanian annual report done, get the IRS foreign bank accounts report done. Visitors are coming! Start packing for furlough! And so on...

In the middle of the work, there is a happiness that comes from knowing we have finished another term of missionary service strong. Our longest term ever — seven years. I wouldn't try to put a number on the lives saved, the suffering relieved, the hungry fed, the people that have come to Jesus. But the numbers are large.

But numbers don't tell the whole story. The smile of a child when given food, the mother who can't find words to express her gratefulness that her child lives because of a surgery, and the woman falling to her knees weeping because we helped her kids get into school. These moments, (and there are many of them,) make us rejoice that God has permitted us to be His missionaries.

My missionary mentor told me that the call to missions is a call to a life of sorrow. I know of the sadness he was talking about. There is a cross we are called to carry. But he didn't tell me the whole story. The joy that Jesus sets before us makes the cross seem lighter. And at times, so light it is almost not even there.

So where do you fit in?

Every joy I experience, you are in my heart. Every penny given, I am eternally grateful to you, the giver. Every day I know you care. Your partnership with the Lord is the foundation of all the good things happening here. You care about things beyond yourself.

You amaze me because you are faithful to the Lord even though you don't see those smiles, healed bodies, and the tears of a desperate woman. You don't see all those who received your love. You challenge my faith and commitment with your own. You make me want to work harder and longer, and do more for the Lord.

So we are headed back to the USA for a furlough. Claudia needs her shoulder operation on April 10, we need some rest, and most important, we need to come see you. We need to say "Thank You!"

P.S. The police called us into the police station. They just wanted to thank Radio JOY for the effect on the population and that we have made their job easier. Crime is down!

Wings of Prayer

The Unsaid Prayer

*"I do believe;
help me overcome
my unbelief!"*

Mark 9:24

How do you pray for something when deep down you realize you don't fully believe that the prayer will be answered?

This is something that I'm struggling with as I write this article. My sister has been battling a very aggressive form of cancer. When first diagnosed they said without treatment she would be dead in 6 weeks. That's a pretty grim prognosis. She started with standard chemotherapy, and when that didn't work, she was placed in a clinical trial using an experimental drug. This cancer is such that she will need treatments for the rest of her life. The chemo holds the cancer at bay. If she stops, the cancer advances. It's been a year and a half since her diagnosis and the chemo drugs are starting to build up and take a toll on her body. Recently, she had to pause treatment several times due to the cumulative effect of these toxic drugs. It's catching up to her. What kills the cancer also destroys healthy organs. It's a delicate balance and there is no telling how long this treatment will work before the side effects are causing as much harm as the cancer.

When I heard that she was hospitalized this week in need of a blood transfusion I stopped to pray. But the words wouldn't come. I wanted to pray for healing. For the cancer to be taken away. I'm a Christian. I'm supposed to believe that God can do all things. But I have also seen what cancer does; seen how often there is no healing. I have a very practical, analytical brain that knows the odds. So I just sat there, struggling to find words to form a prayer that I could believe.

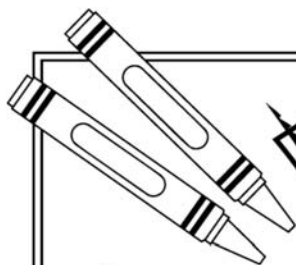

It was there that God met me. First through a friend who I shared my pain with. When I said, "I don't know how to pray," he said, "Then let me." And prayers were said. Powerful prayers. After I hung up the phone, I picked up my Bible. God met me there too.

More than that, he led me. We started in Isaiah, where he reminded me that we will not always understand what He does. “As the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways and my thoughts than your thoughts.” Isaiah 55:9. Then in Job, where many passages spoke of His sovereignty. Then in Psalms where I repeatedly saw David crying out in despair, but always finding God at his side, even through trials and difficult circumstances. I saw how he praised God in all of those circumstances. Finally, I came to the verse above from the story of the father who brought his son to Jesus to be healed from a spirit which tormented him. He used the phrase “If you can do anything, take pity on us and help him.” Jesus told him that everything is possible for one who believes. It was then that the man confessed his unbelief at the same time he said that he believed. That is where I am. I have a feeling we have all been there. We don’t want to make God small, but when we let our worldly knowledge take over, that’s when doubt creeps in.

This is where we must lean on our faith. Look around for examples of when God did answer prayers, even seemingly impossible ones. It may have been in your own life, or something that you saw in someone else’s life. Take your doubts to God. He will meet you where you are. Go to His Word. Look around for reminders of God’s power and faithfulness.

As you pray, please keep the needs of the following in mind: Carol Phillips, Carol Harding, Bud Shropshire, Ginny Morrow, Sherry Rusk, Barbara Edelman, Joyce Schoch, Betty Alber, Elizabeth Hollows, Bea Williams, Jantzen Aurig, Audrey Diehl, Arnie Arnold, Cheryl Averell, David Shropshire, Holly Gibbons.
