To:

"You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor and hate your enemy.' But I say to you Love your enemies and pray for those who persecute you, so that you may be sons of your Father who is in heaven..."
(Matt 5:43-45)

It Is Not What You Have

A king suffered a terribly painful sickness. His advisor told him that the only cure was to locate a contented man and ask for his shirt to wear night and day. Immediately messengers were sent through the kingdom to look for such a man and bring back his shirt. Months passed; finally all the messengers returned empty-handed. The king was exasperated. "Do you mean to tell me there is not even a single man in all my realm who is content?" A messenger replied, "We found only one such man in all your realm." "Why did you not bring his shirt?" "Master, the man had no shirt." Dr. Dale Robbins writes, "I used to think people complained because they had a lot of problems. But I have come to realize that they have problems because they complain. Complaining does not change anything or make situations better. It amplifies frustration, spreads discontent and discord, and can invoke an invitation for the devil to cause havoc with our lives." "Do all things without complaining and disputing, that you may become blameless and harmless" (Philippians 2:14-15). —Anonymous

Context Is King

Allen Webster

The meaning of any Scripture will be consistent with what comes before and after it. Words in the Bible, as in other literature, convey meaning according to rules of grammar. Since a sentence is the basic unit of intelligible discourse, and the paragraph is the framework for expressing a complete thought, the paragraph is the basic unit of Bible study.

First, read the entire paragraph to see a verse as a part of the whole thought. Some translations (asv, nkjv, esv) show paragraphs by indentation, verse numbers in bold print, and/or double space, while others use a symbol (§ in kjv) to show paragraphs.

Second, determine how words are being used. Bible words should be taken in their normal sense unless the author is using a figure of speech. For example, Revelation is written in figurative language (Revelation 1:1), so when it talks of dragons, serpents, harps, and stars falling to the earth, these represent ideas beyond the literal.

What is Figurative Language?

A type of descriptive language where the meaning of the phrase is not to be taken literally or word for word. The phrase has a deeper or more abstract meaning.

• Third, determine general or specific application. If an explanation is specific to a single person, then it does not apply to people today. Paul commanded Timothy to bring the cloak, books, and parchments he had left at Troas (2 Timothy 4:13). Obviously, this was not a general command that requires all Christians to journey to Rome with warm garments and study materials.

Three types of commands directly intended for today include the following:

- Universal commands (Matthew 5:19, 22, 28, 31–32; 19:4–9; John 3:16; 4:14; 8:34; Romans 10:13; Galatians 5:4; 1 John 2:2; 3:4, 15; 4:15);
- Instruction to the church (Matthew 28:19; Mark 16:15–16; 1 Corinthians 14:35; 1 Timothy 3:15; 1 Peter 3:15);
- Commands given to groups to which we belong (Ephesians 5:22–33; 6:1–3; 1 Timothy 2:8–12; Titus 2:1–10; James 3:1; 1 Peter 3:1–7; 5:1–3).

Practice careful examination to avoid taking verses out of context. To quote out of context is to remove a passage from its surroundings in a way that distorts its meaning. D.A. Carson is often quoted for this famous statement: “A text without a context is a pretext for a proof text.” (Carson attributed the quote to his father, Tom.) Man is ever prone to this. One rabbi is said to have satirized his rival by saying, “When Rabbi Eliezer expounds, he begins by saying, ‘Scripture, be silent, while I am interpreting.’” If we twist verses to fit theories instead of adjusting beliefs to fit Scripture, we facilitate our own destruction (2 Peter 3:15–16). Start a study of the Bible today. It is the most important book
